

Legend

- The family tree is rendered from left to right
- generations, regardless of age (birth), are delineated in the vertical columns
- the vertical sequence is the birth order, not necessarily chronological or indicative of age (the oldest in a generation may have children who are the same age as the youngest in his generation, but not necessarily)
- Lines denote blood relationships
- shaded boxes indicate the start of a new bold name [tree] in the context of this family [tree], due to a female in this family [tree] marrying a male
- bold lines denote the family bold name being carried (thus it is not repeated)
- square boxes denote males; rounded boxes denote females
- T denotes twins, in the given birth order
- grey boxes denote step-family, due to the spouse having children from a previous union (there may be half brother/sisters, follow the lines)
- an arrow at bottom right denotes the person is carried to another part of the tree
- progeny is not shown here, to avoid otherwise horrendous duplication
- an arrow at top left denotes the person is brought from another part of the tree
- progeny is shown here, where the name carried

Biological fact only, is documented: there are two sexes. (The notion of 'gender' denies biological fact, denial of such is insanity.) That which is not based on fact, and the ever-changing notions, are not shown.

- a person is a product of the union of two parents (and the participation of God), rather than of each of two parents separately
- Unions may or may not be solemnised, may be multiple, etc
- Unions that did not issue are not shown

(M) [W] • Marriage
 (D) [2] • Divorce
 (U) [S] • Other Union that issued
 (D) [F] • Spiritual union, lasting unto death
 • Sodomite union (issues not possible)
 • Fostered children, no biological connection
 • Widowed (second marriage after)
